Leadership for the Education Field

Dr. Daniel L. Clay is professor and dean of the University of Iowa College of Education, a role he has held since 2016. Prior to this, Dan served as the dean of the University of Missouri College of Education for six years, where he also served on the board of directors of the Missouri Innovation Center, a business incubator/accelerator.

Dan is a nationally recognized scholar and fellow of the American Educational Research Association and the American Psychological Association. He is a leader in the application of continuous quality improvement methods that focus on organizational performance excellence. He has expertise in finance, marketing, enrollment growth, research growth, leadership development and fundraising. Dan was recognized in 2014 as a Leader of Change by The Network for Change and Continuous Innovation: Higher Education's Network for Change Leadership.

Dr. Clay earned a Bachelor of Arts in psychology from the College of St. Scholastica in Duluth, Minnesota; a Master of Arts in educational and counseling psychology from the University of Missouri; and a Ph.D. in counseling psychology from the University of Missouri. He also received a higher education administration certificate through the Management Development Program at Harvard University and an MBA from the University of Missouri Trulaske College of Business.

Dan is also a successful entrepreneur involved in business start-ups inside and outside education.
